The LifeWise PSHE Programme

We're LifeWise, and we're passionate about PSHE.

We created our PSHE curriculum to teach children relevant and vital life lessons to be better prepared to deal with life's challenges. We fully comply with the DfE statutory Relationships, Relationships and Sex Education and Health Education guidance. All RSHE lessons are threaded into our wider whole-school PSHE curriculum.

We provide a broad and robust collection of lessons, resources and activities for children aged 4-11. This document will show a proposed sequence for each year group in your primary school. Please note that this proposal is not mandatory. We encourage you to use our lessons flexibly depending on your school demographic, present-day challenges and whole-school objectives.

The sequence was specifically developed to allow for knowledge and skills to be introduced and revisited across Key Stages 1 and 2. However, our lessons can be delivered independently and/or in your own sequence!

You will notice that we have provided significant optionality for your Year 6 students. All our supplementary lessons are not statutory, but form an important set of life skills for students transitioning into secondary school. These lessons can dovetail into the wider national curriculum, forming part of a robust global citizenship approach in your school.

Relationships and Health DfE Compliance

We've got you covered.

Using supplementary lessons to support your PSHE goals

As our content grows, you will have access to an exponential library of LifeWise quality resources that we won't include in a recommended weekly plan.

Our new content will be rooted in our mission to better prepare children for life and will link to the goals of PSHE education. So you can use our lesson library to:

- Build a complete global citizenship initiative that meets cross-curricular goals;
- Support interventions;
- Provide optionality outside of the recommended sequence for different student needs;
- Create your own sequence of learning bespoke to your school setting.

We continually write content, so look for new lessons, assemblies and worksheets across the 2022-2023 academic year. If you have a specific request, please contact your Account Manager.

We wish you a happy and successful year!
